Harpers Ferry Negative No. 66 (National Geographic File No. 140325-A).

The Potomac River is flowing from the left and the Shenandoah River from the right; the view is looking southeast at the junction of the two streams. Buildings, left to right, beginning with the Armory Building with a cupola at foot of hill - The Bell or Finishing Shop, then moving up to the river edge, the roof of the Armory Warehouse; then the Armory flagpole, the square and tall B. & O water tower; next the one-story stone warehouse on east end of Wager Lot 10, with 3-story Walsh & Brother Dry Goods Store on the west end of Lot 10; next, on Lot 9, Dr. Claggetts (2½-story) Drug store, with rear of the three-story Potomac Restaurant visible on the east end of Lot 9. To the right of this, also fronting on the railroad and located on the east end of Lots 8 and 7, is the three-story brick wing that was added to the Wager House or U. S. Hotel in 1842; at the west end of Lot 8 is the two-story frame Strauss Clothing Store; then on Lots 6 and 7, comes the 3½-story Wager House Hotel; on Lot 1 to the right is the roof of the 1-story B & O Railroad Depot. At the entrance to the Potomac bridge, and resting on the Shenandoah River wall is the bridge toll house and B & O old depot, both 1-story buildings, then the two-story frame Gault House Saloon, and finally the Winchester & Potomac Railroad Depot to the right.

Returning to the Gault House Saloon and moving left: First the three-story brick house on Lot 2, then entrance to Arsenal, with the Large Arsenal (the large 2-story brick building with round arch windows and dating from 1801,) to the right. Continuing left is a portion of the 2-story stone house on Lot 4, then the 3½-story hipped roofed house of William J. Stephens on Lot 5 at the corner of South Potomac and Shenandoah Streets. Then proceeding right again along Shenandoah Street, are the rear (north) roofs of Buildings No. 9 and 8; Buildings 10 (with skylight) and 10A, 11, and 12; then on the hillside, the roof of Building 1A, the Harper House and (to the left) the large residence being reroofed (following a fire) is Building 1B, Marmion Hall; to the left again is the roof of Building 1C and 1D. The buildings located in the left foreground are located on Wager Lots 41 and 39.
